Drayer Introduction December 2010 This year we are suffering one of the coldest winters ever in this part of Florida. Because of the cold, nearly everyone is remaining indoors. The exceptions are the thousands of world tourist visiting the Orlando area. I am a dog that needs to walk outside every day, regardless of the weather to get my much-needed exercise. My name is Pal. Unfortunately, my owner, Al Lee, is not doing his part to help me. He is content to sit in his comfortable recliner, watching the television that is constantly blaring about how cold it is here in Florida. If I complain to him about my needs, he tells me to find a comfortable warm place to lie down and be quiet. Just in case you did not catch the meaning of the last sentence, I will explain it to you. Shortly after I was born in 2003, Al, my earthly Dad and I, through a mystery neither of us understands,...
