The reason is that personal property is not bound until the writ is lodged with the sheriff. Why does not the court follow out its principles in this instance, and apportion personal assets, rateably among judgments? It deviates as Lord Talbot says, from its ordinary rule of justice and equality, in allowing preferences against legal assets, in order to follow the law; and yet in this instance it deviates from the law, to establish inequality. The case of Mortice v. The Bank of England, may not, on an pt inVSr. accurate examination prove as strong upon this point, as it at F. C. 405. first appears. Perhaps the assets applied in the manner decreed were real assets, the produce of real estate. In the executrix s plea in 173 1, she plead bonds and specialties to 15,000; and that she had only 1000, assets to pay; and in 1734. the real estate was declared subject to the debts, and directed to bo sold. Now against the real estate, and justly against its produce on a sale, judgments would be preferred by their ateS 2 Coxes In Goatex. Fryer, however Lord Thurlow says, -- The cases, 201. court does not take from a creditor the benefit of a judgment if prior to a decree, but it only supports the decree as equal in point of rank to a judgment; and then follows...
