Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from A Sketch of Shakespeare This little volume has been made up, by request of friends, from the substance of these addresses read to the Wheeling Shakespeare Club upon the anniversaries of the poet s birth, in 1875, 77, and 79. In consolidating these, certain local allusions, which were interesting only on the occasions that gave rise to them, have been omitted; and some new matter, mostly in the way of illustration of the original thoughts, has been added: but so little change has been made in the form of the composition that it still retains the desultory character permissible in its first purpose, and lacks the systematic arrangement and thoroughness which should belong to a critical essay. It will therefore be understood that here is no elaborately digested biography containing the result of careful research of original authorities, nor an exhaustive analysis of the genius of Shakespeare, which would be a more ambitious effort than is here attempted; but simply a tribute of respectful admiration to the greatest poet of our language, with a brief sketch of his life and an endeavor to set down some of the plain and obvious reasons why we honor and admire him, and why the world has accorded to him the highest place in its literature. With this explanation, the author must be content; but asks that enthusiasm in his subject be permitted to stand, in some degree, as an excuse for the book.
